DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's request for reconsideration of the finality of the rejection of the last Office action is persuasive and, therefore, the finality of that action is withdrawn.
2. The examiner agrees that the Gesswein patent does not teach a recess formed in the body member.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claim 1-4, and 7-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Sochor 4416504.
5. Sochor teach system for locking a component along a guide wire, comprising: a guide wire (76) having a flexible body member (10) disposed thereon; a locking component having a body member (26) including means for temporarily compressing at least a portion of the flexible body member of the guide wire to allow the compress portion of the flexible body member to be placed in a recess (32) formed in the body member, the compressed portion of the flexible body member being adapted to decompress within the recess to lock the formerly compress portion of the flexible body member within the recess (col. 3, lines 16-23); wherein the means for temporarily compressing the flexibly body member of the guide wire is a longitudinal opening (24) extending into the body member which is adapted to receive and temporarily compress at least a portion of the flexibly body member; wherein the longitudinal opening extending into the body member is proximally tapered from one diameter to a smaller diameter (fig. 2) ; wherein the recess formed in the locking device is adjacent to the smaller diameter of the longitudinal opening and in communication with the longitudinal opening (fig. 2); wherein the flexible member disposed on the guide wire provides shock absorbing capabilities (springs absorb shock).

6. As to claims 8, it has been held that the recitation that an element is "adapted to" perform a function is not a positive limitation but only requires the ability to so perform. It does not constitute a limitation in any patentable sense. In re Hutchison, 69 USPQ 138.

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claims 11-37 are allowable over the prior art of record.

8. Claims 5, 6, and 10 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

9. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: the prior art of record fails to teach or render obvious the overall claimed invention of an embolic protection device comprising: a guide wire including a flexible member disposed thereon; and filter assembly having a guide wire locking component. Attached to one of the ends of the filter assembly, the guide wire locking component including means for temporarily compressing at least a portion of the flexible body member of the guide wire to allow the compressed portion of the flexible body member to be placed in a recess formed in the guide wire locking component, the compressed portion of the flexible body member being adapted to decompress within the recess to lock the formerly compressed portion of the flexible body member within the recess.
